

Earl's Diary - Friday - July 24, 2009

I got up at 6:30 this morning. (That's an amazing thing!) After eating a quick cold cereal breakfast it was time to get the trailer ready to move out. Richard and Suzi were also up and getting their trailer ready to move. They left for Idaho just a few minutes before I pulled out heading for California.

At 8:00 I was on the road heading south. The weather was COLD last night in Crescent. As I moved further south it warmed up considerably. Traveling south out of Klamath Falls, Mount Shasta framed a very pretty picture.

I arrived in Red Bluff at 3:00 at Red Bluff RV Park. This is an excellent park with 69 spaces, well groomed premises, all pull through spaces, and a swimming pool - all for only $27 with full hookups! I can recommend this park for anyone wanting to spend some time in Red Bluff (Why would anyone want to do that?).

The weather today was only 101. My AC worked all afternoon and is still running at 8:00. I did enjoy a swim in the pool although the water was quite warm. (solar heating?)

Tomorrow it's the final dash for home. - - Earl
