

Earl's Diary - Thursday - September 4, 2014

To all my Loyal Readers,

The day arrived bright, cool and sunny. Again I had to crawl under the covers of the sleeping bag. Today most of the participants will be arriving for the sixth annual Nor Cal Roundup. There are no planned activities for this day so my plan is to wander around to observe what other people are doing.

An arrival

Not much going on!

All set up and ready to go. Gives new meaning to "everything but the kitchen sink". If you look close, you might even see the sink!

Three Scamp 5ers all in a row

"I can't have you looking at my dirty trailer."

Well, Loyal Readers, that was the day. Not much going on. It was interesting meeting and greeting fellow arrivers. As soon as their egg was all nestled, the relaxing began.

That was the day. Thanks for stopping by for a visit. Bye for now - - Earl

Earl's Diary - Friday - September 5, 2014

Hello to all my Loyal Readers,

This morning not too much was planned activity wise. We wanted everyone to do what interests them. Some people just visit, others went on a sight seeing tour, others went for a hike to a nearby scenic area. My self? I visited with many friends I hadn't seen for awhile.

One of the big events for the day was the Ladderball tournament. We traveled next door to the Plumas County Park where there was plenty of cooling grass and shade.

The cheering section

The high ---- and low --- of it all!

The ever vigilant scorekeepers

Baby sitter in action

Perfect form????

The tournament provided the exercise for the day.

The Dessert Potluck was the main activity for the evening.

We enjoyed a talk by two forest rangers from the nearby forest service. Of interest to the group was the topic of forest fires - how they are controlled, or not controlled.

This was a busy day today. The weather was warm again. However by evening time it had cooled down and the outside seating was very pleasant indeed!

Tomorrow is another busy day, so I better head off to bed. Thanks for traveling along with me. Until tomorrow - bye for now - - Earl
